832	DUNN VINEYARDS "LIBRARY RELEASE", HOWELL MOUNTAIN 1984	525

Led by Randy Dunn, and a few other winemakers and grape growers, the distinctive Howell Mountain AVA was proposed and defined. The AVA's boundary starts at an elevation of 1400' so even when it is cool and foggy on the valley floor, it is sunny and breezy up on the mountain. Dunn Vineyards Cabernets epitomizes the Howell Mountain Cabernet: deep concentration, bold, massive, ultra-rich and elegant.

"I have had the 1985 Dunn Vineyard Cabernet a number of times – and yet I was shocked by its concentration, its aromatic intensity, and its sheer youthfulness. Dark, deep and beautifully resonant, but not at all heavy, the 1985 still possesses extraordinary richness while remaining very much classic in feel. Those lucky enough to own it can look forward to another 15-20 years of glorious drinking. What a wine!"

Barely 50 years ago, the first Willamette Valley Pinot Noirs were released. A 1980s guide listed just a couple dozen wineries statewide, many long gone. Today, Oregon has close to 800 wineries, and Pinot Noir continues to star in that success story.

The French Invasion – and investment - accelerated both quality and growth. When Robert Drouhin, from Burgundy's Maison Joseph Drouhin, purchased Dundee Hills land in 1987, it initiated a tectonic shift in how the world viewed the region's potential for Pinot Noir. Today, more than a dozen French-born and trained winemakers have direct ties to Oregon projects.

There are over 2,000 grape varieties cultivated in Italy of which 440 are registered for commercial wine production, making Italy home to a quarter of the world's native grapes.

In Italy there are 408 Protected Designations of Origin including 74 of the highest quality regions and 334 of the second highest quality. This is more than any other country in Europe, testifying to the great variety and uniqueness of the Italian wine regions.

A Chilean wine from Colchagua Valley, Clos Apalta may be lesser known — in comparison to Bordeaux's Château Lafite Rothschild, Tuscany's Sassicaia or California's Opus One — but it has been awarded perfect 100 points for both the 2014 and 2015 vintages. In hindsight, there's no doubt that Clos Apalta is one of the world's greatest red wines. Expressive and complex in flavor, both vintages are blessed with the balance and precision essential for 100 points.

-James Suckling
